The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1,3,5,7,9-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claims 1,5 and 7, proper antecedent basis is lacking for "the moving side." The Examiner suggests using --moving mold-- in its place.

Claims 1,3,5,7,9-12 are objected to because of the following informalities: on line 1 of each of claims 1 and 5, --molding a-- should be inserted before "seal member." The dependent claims should be amended accordingly. Appropriate correction is required.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1,3,5,7,9-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Japanese Patent 9-225975 in view of Buzzell et al.

Japanese Patent '975 discloses the invention substantially as claimed, i.e. injection molding a seal using a gate seal pin provided on the moving mold while sealing a gate and a seal member left on the movable side is ejected by means of a plurality of ejector pins provided on the moving mold under a condition of opening said moving mold. However, the seal of '975 does not disclose a convex portion to hold it in place so as to hold it in place opposite the ejector pins. The product formed by Buzzell shows a product having convex portions forming ribs (hook elements 6) used to hold the product in place so as to maintain the position of the article opposite the ejector pins so as to allow for the ejection of the formed article. Thus, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide convex portions on the moving mold of '975 in order to maintain the product opposite the ejector pins as suggested by Buzzell. Such an arrangement allows for the ejector pins to contact the product at an underside of the seal not serving as a sealing face. The limitation of increasing friction between the seal member and the moving side inherently comes about by way of the convex portions rubbing against the moving mold. Using the seal member in a valve timing adjustment device is intended use of the product and does not form part of the apparatus.
